OUR MISSION

Founded by Jesus Christ, St. John the Baptist Catholic Church is the heart of Glandorf. At the heart of our faith are the Sacraments which St. John's is here to evangelize, catechize, and celebrate all of God's people to set their hearts on fire in passionate love of God and neighbor.

OUR VISION

We enable spiritual formation and growth, support discipleship, provide outreach through community service, and build relationships, so we can build the Kingdom of God in Glandorf and around the world. Driven by the Gospel of Jesus Christ; we want to educate and promote respect for the dignity of life, encourage charity and justice, and embody the moral values of the church. Our mission is guided by Scripture and Traditions of our Catholic Faith and aligned with the mission of the Diocese of Toledo to make Holy Disciples, Holy Families, and Holy Vocations.

FROM THE DESK OF DEACON MIKE

What is love? Love is a word that is used in so many different ways in our world that it may be confusing to makes sense of what Jesus is saying in today's gospel.

We use it to describe a feeling for things we enjoy. I love to go camping or I love pizza. We say it to our family and friends as a gesture of appreciation or happiness. This type of love, is trying to describe an emotion, a feeling, a sentiment but that's not the love Jesus is talking about when he tells us the greatest commandment. "You shall love the Lord, your God, with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind." And Jesus is not talking about a feeling when he shares the second greatest commandment "You shall love your neighbor as yourself."

The love Jesus speaks of, is an act of the will. Not a feeling, not an emotion. Instead, it is a deliberate, conscious choice to act for the well-being of someone else. St. Thomas Aquinas defines love as willing the good of the other. We hear that in the words of the gospel today. Three key words within Jesus' message. The first, ALL. Love with ALL your heart, with ALL your soul, and with ALL your mind. I think we can see the deep, deliberate choice he tells us to make. It's as if he is saying, don't just say it, choose it! Will it from the deepest part of you!

The other two key words found in the second commandment are "as yourself." In other words, The ultimate act of humility. Put yourself at the same level as everyone else, or better yet, put your neighbor at the same level as yourself. This is what the Vatican II document, Gaudium et Spes, means when it refers to love as the "gift of self". This is the love that allows us to be willing to give up our life for the sake of our spouse or kids or other loved ones.

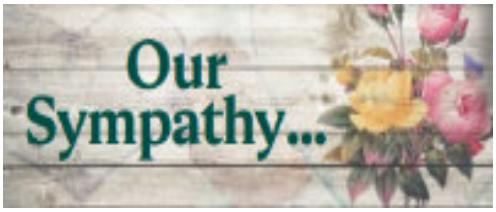

So, how does that fit with our neighbors, everyone else in the world? I think God was helping me to understand this message recently by pointing to a wall hanging in one of the class rooms in the Parish Center. I had read today's readings a week or so back and had been contemplating what message He wants me to share with all of you. I noticed a canvas in a classroom. It's probably been there for a while. I probably looked at it a hundred times but never read it… until last week. You're probably all in suspense right now. Wondering what could it possibly have said that would fit into today's homily?

It's words Mother Teresa lived by.

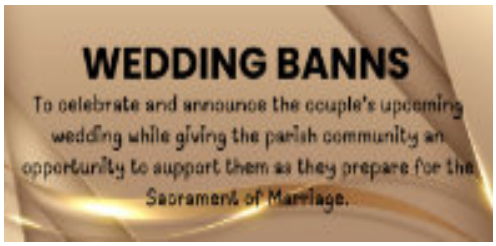

"People are often unreasonable and self-centered. Forgive them anyway. If you are kind, people may accuse you of ulterior motives. Be kind anyway. If you are honest, people may cheat you. Be honest anyway. If you find happiness, people may be jealous. Be happy anyway. The good you do today may be forgotten tomorrow. Do good anyway. Give the world the best you have and it may never be enough. Give your best anyway. For you see, in the end, it is between you and God. It was never between you and them anyway."

Virtue: Mortification (Vice: Gluttony)

In today's readings God is teaching His people to love one another, before self. In the first reading, He tells them to treat the orphaned, widowed and stranger with great love. He warns them not to wrong others by holding anything back from those in need, or desiring more for their own personal desires. In the Gospel, Jesus tells us to love God first with our whole heart and soul, and then to love others as ourselves. God does not want us to restrain from doing for others what is needed. When we hold back from giving love it may be because we have the vice of gluttony dwelling within us.

Gluttony is the immoderate or unreasonable pleasure in gaining an excess of things such as food, drink, money, entertainment, attention, or any activity that brings us pleasure. It ultimately is a selfish act as the person seeks to obtain more than the reasonable amount for themselves. The things in our life are present before us to enjoy. However, gluttony creeps in when we place our love for things above that which should be the real loves of our lives, namely God and other people.

God is asking us to love others at all costs…that will probably call us to grow in the virtue of mortification. Mortification is the virtue of self-denial. It is taking on small acts of suffering to train our bodies and our spirits to put God and others first.

If we acquire the habit of chasing after all that we desire (aka: gluttony), then those things we desire become too powerful and can control us. We must then take deliberate steps of self-denial to overcome that power; to train those desires to be quiet so they don't drown out the more important desires of our souls. If we are not able to discipline our desires, other vices such as anger, lust, pride, etc. can grow stronger within us. Mortification, or self-denial, trains our minds and hearts to discipline our fleshly desires.

How can we practice mortification? We intentionally restrict our desires out of love of God or others. In doing so, we are placing God as the most important one we love, and our neighbor likewise, just as Jesus instructed us to do in today's Gospel. We deny ourselves the small pleasures because we know that living in the grace of God is more important and He gives us true pleasure.

Here are some simple ways to address the vice of gluttony through small acts of suffering, or mortification:

- Eating Habits: Eat what is served to you. Even if you don't like it, don't complain. Do not overindulge in food or in drink of any kind, especially alcohol. Do not snack in between meals. Skip dessert, take your coffee black.
- Entertainment: Set a timer for the activities you enjoy doing so that you do not lose track of time. Give up participating in an activity- do a kind act for another instead or spend that time in prayer.
- Waking habits: Get out of bed immediately upon waking without hitting the snooze button.
- Speech and tongue: Hold your tongue when provoked, avoid gossip, or offer a kind word when you feel annoyed.
- Sensory restraint: Turn off background noise for silence, limit social media or streaming, or intentionally look away from a tempting sight.
- Daily friction: Accept minor inconveniences—like a slow line, bad weather, or constructive criticism—without grumbling

Small acts of Christian mortification are voluntary, hidden habits of self-denial used to train the will, resist temptation, and unite with Christ. As Jesus taught in today's Gospel…let love be the driver.

VOCATION TESTIMONY

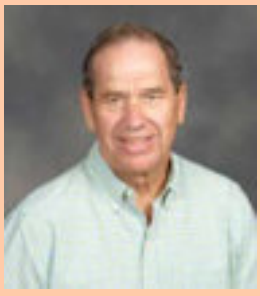

I grew up on the Recker family farm where I continue to live. I was the oldest of six kids and my Grandparents lived with us. It was a very busy household. We always ate our family meals together with dad leading The Angelus.

We all had our chores to do. Most evenings, when dad came in from milking, the TV went off and dad lead the Rosary. Our family went to the Stations of the Cross during Lent. As busy as we were, we took time for Gad and the simple pleasures of life. We played baseball with our neighbors and played with our cousins.

Mom and Dad always put God first in their marriage. Their life changed when Dad had a severe stroke that left him speechless and paralyzed on his left side. Mom and family took care of Dad for 13 years.

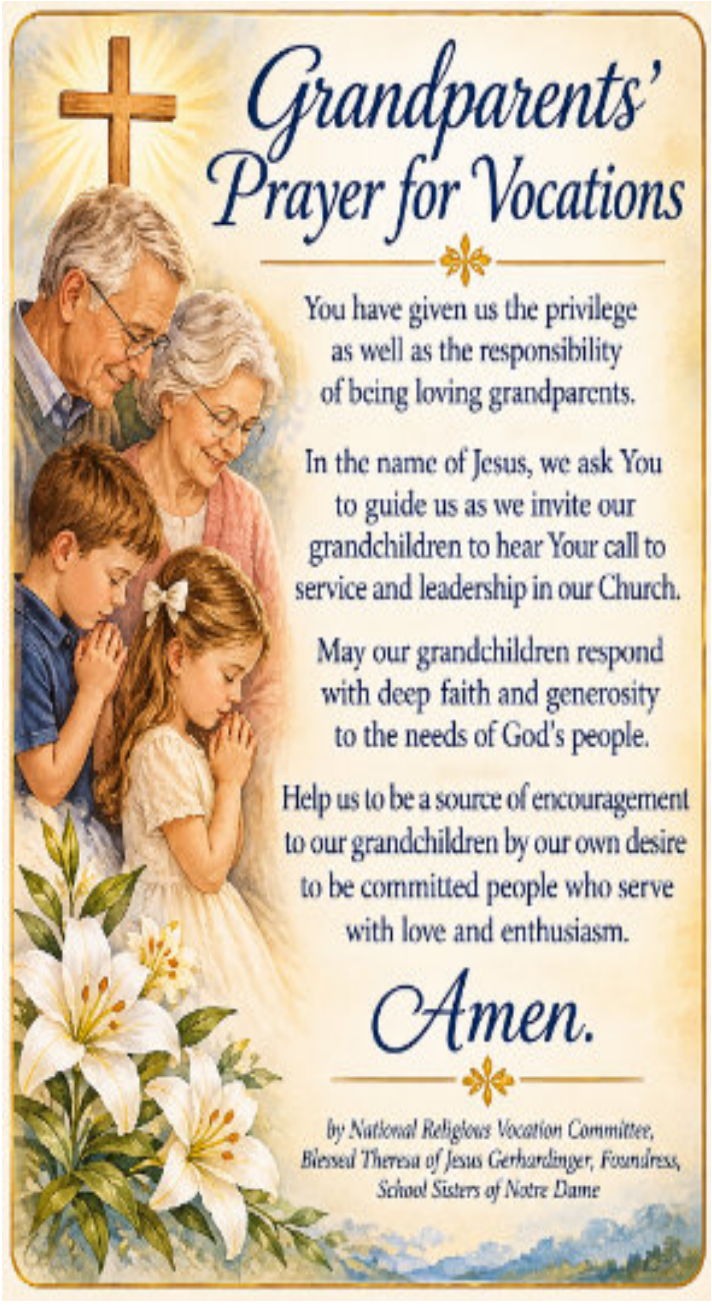

My parents were a great inspiration to me. They taught me to help others in need and reminded me that God is always at my side. Praying to God and talking to Him gives me peace.

Upon retirement from Philips, I wanted to help others for the Blessings I was given. I volunteered at the Parish Center cleaning classrooms and cleaned at YMCA on weekends. I currently volunteer at the Food Pantry, Knapsac and where ever needed. I am a member of the Lion's Club and Outreach. My most treasured membership is being of a K of C 4th Degree Knight. It is such an honor to march at Confirmations and special occasions to escort the Eucharist! I enjoy "That Man Is You" to learn more about my Faith. I like spending time with God when I attend daily Mass and receive the Body and Blood of Jesus! I answered God's call to become an adult mass server, even though I was never a youth mass server. God always gives me the right path to follow when I listen to him!

TODAY IS DAY 41
of our 100-day Pilgrimage praying for Peace.
PEACE
Sr. Joan Klaas, C.PP.S.
Today,
This day
This here and now moment
Is the seed time,
The planting time,
The ripe time,
The only time
And the best time
It is the seed time of peace.
And peace, like seed
Is full of life,
Is full of possibilities
Is full of death,
Is full of limits.
This seedtime of peace
Is ever
And never
And forever.
It is the seedtime of peace
In consciences and mentalities
Of governments and nations.
The seedtime of peace is
Sowing seeds
And building bridges
And restoring ruins
And healing hurts
And patching pains
Yes, now is the seedtime of peace
Yes, now is the day of salvation.
Yes, now.
Yes, it is the seedtime of peace
Ever
And never
And forever.

The Challenge of Forming Consciences for Faithful Citizenship

FORMING CONSCIENCES FOR FAITHFUL CITIZENSHIP

Part I of II: Our Call as Catholic Citizens

This brief document is Part I of a summary of the US bishops' reflection, Forming Consciences for Faithful Citizenship, which complements the teaching of bishops in dioceses and states.

Forming Consciences for Faithful Citizenship is the teaching document of the Catholic Bishops of the United States on the political responsibility of Catholics. It provides guidance for all who seek to exercise their rights and duties as citizens. As Catholics, we bring the richness of our faith to the public square. We draw from both faith and reason as we seek to affirm the dignity of the human person and the common good of all.

Everyone living in this country is called to participate in public life and contribute to the common good.[1] In Rejoice and Be Glad [Gaudete et exsultate], Pope Francis writes:

> Your identification with Christ and his will involves a commitment to build with him that kingdom of love, justice and universal peace. . . . You cannot grow in holiness without committing yourself, body and soul, to giving your best to this endeavor.[2]

As Catholics, we are part of a community with profound teachings that help us consider challenges in public life, contribute to greater justice and peace for all people, and evaluate policy positions, party platforms, and candidates' promises and actions in light of the Gospel in order to help build a better world.

Why Does the Church Teach About Issues Affecting Public Policy?

The Church's obligation to participate in shaping the moral character of society is a requirement of our faith, a part of the mission given to us by Jesus Christ. As people of both faith and reason, Catholics are called to bring truth to political life and to practice Christ's commandment to "love one another" (Jn 13:34).

The US Constitution protects the right of individual believers and religious bodies to proclaim and live out their faith without government interference, favoritism, or discrimination. Civil law should recognize and protect the Church's right and responsibility to participate in society without abandoning its moral convictions. Our nation's tradition of pluralism is enhanced, not threatened, when religious groups and people of faith bring their convictions into public life. The Catholic community brings to political dialogue a consistent moral framework and broad experience serving those in need.

Who in the Church Should Participate in Political Life?

In the Catholic tradition, responsible citizenship is a virtue, and participation in political life is a moral obligation. As Catholics, we should be guided more by our moral convictions than by our attachment to any political party or interest group. In today's environment, Catholics may feel politically disenfranchised, sensing that no party and few candidates fully share our comprehensive commitment to human life and dignity. This should not discourage us. On the contrary, it makes our obligation to act all the more urgent. Catholic lay women and men need to act on the Church's moral principles and become more involved: running for office, working within political parties, and communicating concerns to elected officials. Even those who cannot vote should raise their voices on matters that affect their lives and the common good. Faithful citizenship is an ongoing responsibility, not just an election year duty.

How Can Catholic Social Teaching Help Guide Our Participation?

In the words of Pope Francis, "progress in building a people in peace, justice and fraternity depends on four principles related to constant tensions present in every social reality. These derive from the pillars of the Church's social doctrine, which serve as 'primary and fundamental parameters of reference for interpreting and evaluating social phenomena.'"[3] The four principles include the dignity of the human person, the common good, subsidiarity, and solidarity. Taken together, these principles provide a moral framework for Catholic engagement in advancing what we have called a "consistent ethic of life" (Living the Gospel of Life, no. 22).

Rightly understood, this ethic does not treat all issues as morally equivalent; nor does it reduce Catholic teaching to one or two issues. It anchors the Catholic commitment to defend human life and other human rights, from conception until natural death, in the fundamental obligation to respect the dignity of every human being as a child of God.

Catholic voters should use Catholic teaching to examine candidates' positions on issues and should consider candidates' integrity, philosophy, and performance. It is important for all citizens "to see beyond party politics, to analyze campaign rhetoric critically, and to choose their political leaders according to principle, not party affiliation or mere self-interest" (USCCB, Living the Gospel of Life, no. 33). The following summary of the four principles highlights several themes of Catholic social teaching for special consideration: these include human rights and responsibilities, respect for work and the rights of workers, care for God's creation, and the preferential option for the poor and vulnerable.[4]

The Dignity of the Human Person

Human life is sacred because every person is created in the image and likeness of God. There is a rich and multifaceted Catholic teaching on human dignity summarized in the Compendium of the Social Doctrine of the Church. Every human being "must always be understood in his unrepeatable and inviolable uniqueness . . . This entails above all the requirement not only of simple respect on the part of others, especially political and social institutions and their leaders with regard to every man and woman on the earth, but even more, this means that the primary commitment of each person towards others, and particularly of these same institutions, must be for the promotion and integral development of the person" (no. 131). The Compendium continues, "It is necessary to 'consider every neighbor without exception as another self, taking into account first of all his life and the means necessary for living it with dignity' (Gaudium et Spes, no. 27).

Every political, economic, social, scientific and cultural program must be inspired by the awareness of the primacy of each human being over society."[5]

Subsidiarity

It is impossible to promote the dignity of the person without showing concern for the family, groups, associations, and local realities—in short, for those economic, social, cultural, recreational, professional, and political communities to which people spontaneously give life and which make it possible for them to achieve effective social growth.[6] The family, based on marriage between a man and a woman, is the fundamental unit of society. This sanctuary for the creation and nurturing of children must not be redefined, undermined, or neglected. Supporting families should be a priority for economic and social policies. How our society is organized—in economics and politics, in law and public policy—affects the well-being of individuals and of society. Every person and association has a right and a duty to participate in shaping society to promote the well-being of individuals and the common good.

The principle of subsidiarity reminds us that larger institutions in society should not overwhelm or interfere with smaller or local institutions; yet larger institutions have essential responsibilities when the more local institutions cannot adequately protect human dignity, meet human needs, and advance the common good.[7]

The Common Good

The common good is comprised of "the sum total of social conditions which allow people, either as groups or as individuals, to reach their fulfilment more fully and more easily."[8]

Human dignity is respected and the common good is fostered only if human rights are protected and basic responsibilities are met. Every human being has a right to life, a right to religious freedom, and a right to have access to those things required for human decency—food and shelter, education and employment, health care and housing. Corresponding to these rights are duties and responsibilities—to ourselves, to our families, and to the larger society.

The economy must serve people, not the other way around. An economic system must serve the dignity of the human person and the common good by respecting the dignity of work and protecting the rights of workers. Economic justice calls for decent work at fair, living wages, a broad and fair legalization program with a path to citizenship for immigrant workers, and the opportunity for all people to work together for the common good through their work, ownership, enterprise, investment, participation in unions, and other forms of economic activity. Workers also have responsibilities—to provide a fair day's work for a fair day's pay, to treat employers and coworkers with respect, and to carry out their work in ways that contribute to the common good. Workers, employers, and unions should not only advance their own interests but also work together to advance economic justice and the well-being of all.

We have a duty to care for God's creation, which Pope Francis refers to in Laudato Si' as "our common home."[9] We all are called to be careful stewards of God's creation and to ensure a safe and hospitable environment for vulnerable human beings now and in the future. Pope Francis, consistent with St. John Paul II and Pope Benedict XVI (World Day of Peace Message, 1990 and 2010), has lifted up pollution, climate change, lack of access to clean water, and the loss of biodiversity as particular challenges. Pope Francis speaks of an "ecological debt" (no. 51) owed by wealthier nations to developing nations. And he calls all of us to an "ecological conversion" (no. 219), by which "the effects of [our] encounter with Jesus Christ become evident in [our] relationship with the world around [us]".[10] Indeed, this concern with "natural ecology" is an indispensable part of the broader "human ecology," which encompasses not only material but moral and social dimensions as well.

Solidarity

Solidarity is "a firm and persevering determination to commit oneself to . . . the good of all and of each individual, because we are all really responsible for all." It is found in "a commitment to the good of one's neighbor with the readiness, in the Gospel sense, to 'lose oneself' for the sake of the other instead of exploiting him, and to 'serve him' instead of oppressing him for one's own advantage."[11]

We are one human family, whatever our national, racial, ethnic, economic, and ideological differences. Our Catholic commitment to solidarity requires that we pursue justice, eliminate racism, end human trafficking, protect human rights, seek peace, and avoid the use of force except as a necessary last resort.

In a special way, our solidarity must find expression in the preferential option for the poor and vulnerable. A moral test for society is how we treat the weakest among us—the unborn, those dealing with disabilities or terminal illness, the poor, and the marginalized.

Conclusion

In light of Catholic teaching, the bishops vigorously repeat their call for a renewed politics that focuses on moral principles, the promotion of human life and dignity, and the pursuit of the common good. Political participation in this spirit reflects not only the social teaching of our Church but the best traditions of our nation.

The Greatest Commandment

What does Jesus say the greatest commandment is? At first you might think that the most important thing would be to not kill anyone, wouldn't you? But that's not what He says! The very most important thing is to love God with our whole heart and soul and mind! It means that we must do everything we do for love of God, and live our whole life completely for Him.

But how can we love God so much? Well, we can practice little by little, loving Him more each day. Paying attention at Mass every Sunday and saying a prayer every day would be a good start. Every morning tell God that you will do everything for Him today and every night before you go to bed, thank God for all that He has done for you and tell Him you're sorry for the bad things you did that day. Then try to think about God through the day.

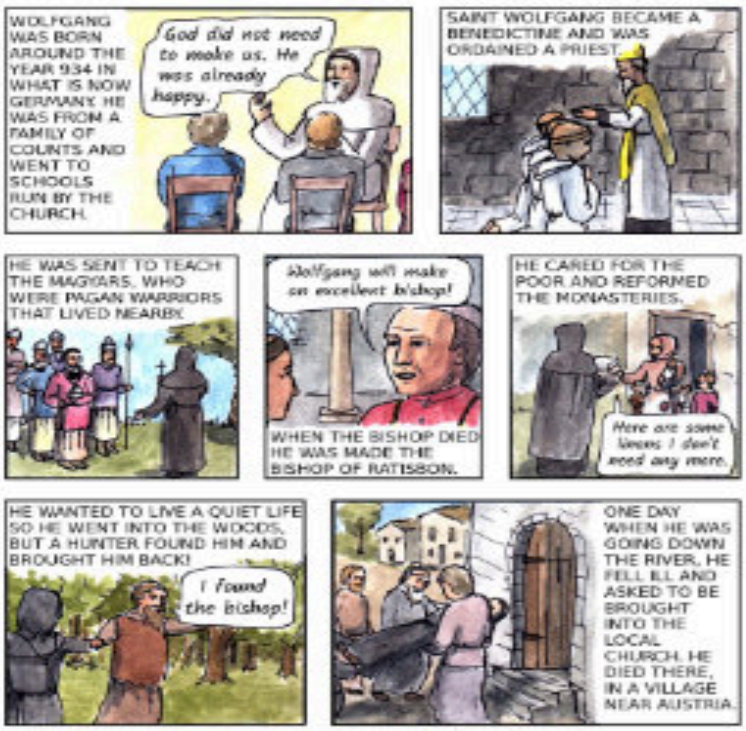

The second greatest commandment that Jesus tells us is that we should love others as much as we love ourselves. If we really love God then we will want to love other people too, because God loves them! If you don't love others, it shows that you don't really love God as much as you should. What can you do today to start loving God more?
